Choice Poetry.

Betrothal.

O for one hour of such enchanted light
 As made a fairer daytime in the sky,
When on the willow-bank we sat that night,
 My old-time love and I!

A while we talked so low and tenderly,
 We felt the listening trees above us lean;
And louder far the silence seemed to me
 That fell at last between.

Her heart lay floating on its quiet thoughts,
 Like water-lilies on a tranquil lake;
And Love within, unknown, because unsought,
 Lay dreaming half awake.

Ah, Love is lightest sleeper ever known!
 A whisper, and he started plain to view;
Old as the heavens seemed our story grown,
 While yet the moon was new.

And when she spoke, her answer seemed the while
 Sweeter for sweetness of the lips that told,
Setting a precious word within a smile—
 A diamond ringed with gold.

Then bloomed for us the perfect century-flower:
 Then filled the cup and overran the brim;
And all the stars processional, that hour
 Chanted a bridal hymn.

Ah, Time, all after-days may fly away,
 Such joy as that thou hast but once to give,
And Love is royal from his crowning day,
 Though kingdomless he live.

Miscellaneous.

The Misfortunes and Consolations of Peregrine Tweezle.

My friend Tweezle has, through life, been the most unfortunate, and yet the most fortunate, of men. Every species of calamity has befallen him, and yet he has never once been unhappy. Misfortune and he have ever been at war; she darting her missiles at him, and he throwing them back at her, or raising up bastions, behind which he has ensconced himself, and laughed the malicious jade to scorn. Lucky has it been for him that he has been made of such "impenetrable stuff;" lucky for him that he has had a thick head and a tough hide; and that, like the tortoise, which encased in its hard shell, lets the ponderous wagon wheel pass over it without flinching, he also has been able to let the heavy car of fate drive right over his back, without having a single bone broken by the pressure. Some men, when under the lash of misfortune, suddenly imagine that they ought to be religious, and take to praying most vehemently while the danger lasts; others are again optimists, and when the shoe pinches them, console themselves by quoting the hackneyed line of the poet, "whatever is, is right;" while others—poor weak minded creatures!—fly to the bottle for solace, and make beasts of themselves, because fate has proved unkind. Tweezle, however condemns all these methods, and consoles himself in a manner peculiarly his own. Whenever any scowling, ill favored fiend, of the many that follow in the train of misfortune, stares him in the face, my friend Tweezle sits himself calmly down and looks at him. He quietly takes the measure of his deformity, and if the fiend should have by chance any good parts about him, he treasures them in his remembrance. Then he shuts his eyes and gives loose rein to his imagination; which, finding itself at liberty to disport, speedily depicts the monster as ten thousand times more hideous than he really is. At this creation of his fancy, Tweezle shudders, his hair stands on end—and he thinks himself indeed an unfortunate man, to be in the presence of a misfortune so great and so menacing. This, however, only lasts for a moment and Tweezle opens his eyes again. The monster is still there. 'Ha! ha!' says Tweezle, pretending to be agreeably surprised, "is that you? Lord love you, I thought you were a great deal uglier; really you are not half so bad as you might have been. Your face is really pleasant and your behavior actually courteous, in comparison with the one I took for you. What a lucky fellow I am, that Fate has sent me, in your person, a misfortune that I can put up with. Ha, my good fellow! there is comfort yet in store!" And Tweezle rhapsodizing in this strain, actually rejoices that a little misfortune has come upon him, because a greater might, with as much justice, have befallen him.

Tweezle and I were school fellows, and one trait of his early character will exemplify his peculiar philosophy. Peregrine, being so easy and good natured, shared the fate of all easy folks, and was always put upon, and became in fact, the scapegoat of the whole school. If any riotous urchin had committed a fault, broken a window, knocked down a pie woman, or drawn a caricature of our pedagogue upon the wall, Peregrine was pointed out as the delinquent. Straightway the awful ferul was put into requisition, and Tweezle and its thongs became more intimately acquainted than was at all agreeable to the former. Tweezle was at this time but seven years old; but his ruling maxim had even then penetrated into his brain, and become the guide of his conduct and his consolation in distress. Our pedagogue Mr. Thump'emwell—had a wife, who had a very inordinate notion of her own excellence, both mental and corporeal, and a very supreme contempt for her husband in both respects. Thump'emwell if rumor spoke truly, now and then experienced from this affectionate partner a few proofs of the superiority, which she manifested by imprinting upon his face the marks of her delicate fingers, and by letting fall upon his eyes the weight of her dainty fist. One unlucky morning, some satirical rogue—ill natured as satirists always are—drew with chalk upon the wall a very tolerable representation of one of the striking scenes above alluded to, which had on the previous evening agreeably relieved the dull monotony of the school-master's life. When Thump'emwell came down in the morning, his eyes rested immediately upon this sketch of connubial felicity. He gazed upon it in awful silence; and then his face grew so red, and the veins of his forehead so swollen—that we thought he would have suffocated. Clenching his hand, and striking it against the desk, upsetting at the same time an inkstand all over his nankeen nether garments, he, with a still small voice, ordered us all to stand up. The dread summons was obeyed, and we stood in a line across the room. Thump'emwell was always in a tremendous fury whenever he spoke low and blandly, and we accordingly prepared ourselves for an explosion.

"Now my dear children,' said Thump'emwell, 'you know I love you sincerely,' and the hypocritical wretch seized hold of his ferula as he spoke, 'and I should die with grief, if one of you ever came to the gallows. Do you hear?'

"Now,' continued he after a short pause 'I was telling you that I loved you dearly: and, as I love you, I must save you from the gallows. Now, the little atrocious vagabond who made that drawing is sure to be hanged; nothing can save him from it, unless I find him out and flog him and confine him for three days upon bread and water. You see therefore my dear children,' continued he, still in the same bland voice 'that my affection compels me to punish the offender. Therefore I ask you who did it?"

No reply.

"Tell me, or I will flog every soul of you from the biggest to the least. Who was the atrocious reptile that had the audacity to do it?"

Still there was no reply; and Thump'emwell lifted his rod, and brandished it in air passing the fingers of his left hand lovingly through the thongs as it descended.

Still a general silence prevailed; every one looked innocent; and the real culprit certainly the most innocent of all.

Again the question was asked, and all eyes were directed towards poor Tweezle, who, though guiltless as the babe unborn, stood trembling at the bottom of the file. His countenance was pale, his eyes were downcast, and his knees knocked together. As the fierce look of the pedagogue was turned towards him, my poor friend thought that he might as well have been guilty since he was sure to bear the punishment.

"It was you, was it; you incorrigible rascal?" said Thump'emwell, seizing the unlucky Peregrine by the nape of the neck. 'Now go sir, and rub it off."

Tweezle did as he was desired.

"Now my dear little boy," said Thump'emwell, "come here!"

Tweezle knew it would be of no use to resist, and so he went.

In a minute afterwards, the instrument of torture ascended and descended in rapid succession, and the screams of the unhappy sufferer resounded through the apartment.

"I'll teach you, you imp, to make sport of your superiors,' said Thump'emwell, after he had flogged him till his arm was tired. 'And now;" added he, "come with me!"

Tweezle, still bellowing, as if he had the lungs of ten urchins, was dragged by Thump'emwell to a little dark, dusty room, used as the prison for juvenile delinquents, and there locked up. We all of us heard him roaring for about five minutes, when the noise gradually subsided, and he was as quiet as if he had dropped asleep. Feeling acutely for his sufferings, and indignant that he should have undergone such severe punishment for an offence of which he was guiltless, I seized an opportunity to steal away to condole with him upon his wrongs. Tapping gently at the door of his prison I announced myself, and straightway began to console him under the pressure of his evil fortune.

"Oh, I am quite comfortable!" said Tweezle, stopping me short in the midst of my lamentations.

"What!' said I, surprised, 'after such a beating as that infernal Thump'emwell gave you?"

"Yes," said Tweezle.

"And three whole days to be locked up here and condemned to bread and water. Comfortable did you say?"

"Yes, quite comfortable," said Tweezle 'one thing only troubles me."

"And what is that?"

"That I was not guilty. However, I intend to become so as soon as I get out and there's comfort in that."

"Well done, Tweezle! I admire you for that! But is it not cruel nevertheless that you should be confined here for three days? Is it not disgraceful?"

"It is rather,' replied Tweezle; "but I don't mind it. Three days will sooner pass than a week. It might have been worse!"

And with this small grain of comfort—that his punishment might have been more severe, Tweezle passed the term of his imprisonment in cheerfulness. Happy Tweezle!

This was one of the troubles of his early life; and in manhood he has not been more fortunate. Ill luck has always followed him. He has been in love, and been jilted; he has played, and been plucked; he has confided and been deceived; but still the more that fortune has frowned, the more stubborn he has been in defiance of her—and the more eager to console himself, even in fate's darkest day, by reflecting, 'that it might have been worse."

Another adventure in which he was concerned will show his turn of mind. The Hon. Major Fitzfiggins, a gentleman who rejoiced in a great stock of assurance, a tolerably handsome person, and a very accommodating conscience, took it into his head to pay some very marked attentions to Miss Julietta Blossom, a young lady to whom Tweezle was engaged. These gallantries of the Major towards the fair Julietta were, of course, not very pleasing to my friend Peregrine; and it may of course be inferred that no great portion of good will subsisted between him and the Major. Peregrine being an easy good natured fellow, would never have insulted Major Fitzfiggins; but the latter being an overbearing puppy—thought fit to apply an epithet towards Mr. Peregrine Tweezle, which as a gentleman, Mr. Peregrine Tweezle could not do otherwise than resent. I was in consequence commissioned to bear an invitation to the Hon. Major Fitzfiggins to take a walk to Chalk Farm on the following morning, where he would find a certain person who would be most happy to exchange shots with him. Major Fitzfiggins was too much of a gentleman to reject so courteous an offer and the next morning, accordingly, the meeting took place.

"Sad rascal, that Fitzfiggins!' said Tweezle to me, as we arrived on the ground.

"And a good shot!' said I, like a Job's comforter as I was.

"I'm glad of it!" said Tweezle.

I was about to ask him why, when the Hon. Major Fitzfiggins arrived on the field accompanied by his second. The customary cold and formal civilities passed between the belligerents: the ground was measured by the seconds, and the principals took their places. There was an awful pause. Each man fired, and each man fell! Tweezle was severely wounded in the right arm. I knelt down and began to bandage up his wounds as well as I was able, when the second of the Major came up to me. Alarm and anxiety were imprinted on his countenance.

"For God's sake!' said he in a hurried tone, 'gentlemen, lose no time—fly—fly! Major Fitzfiggins is, I fear, mortally wounded."

"Good God!" said I, "I hope not."

"I fear so,' answered the second,—shaking his head dolefully, as he turned to render that assistance which his friend so imperatively needed. To my unsophisticated mind the aspect of affairs was disagreeable enough. Tweezle saw that I thought so; and looking earnestly in my face, whispered in a confiding tone—It might have been worse!

"How?" replied I mechanically, for I was thinking whither we should proceed till the disagreeable business had blown over.

"I might have missed him!' said Tweezle; and he fainted from loss of blood.

I carried him in my arms to a hackney coach that was in waiting, and we drove away rapidly. Three weeks afterwards we heard that Major Fitzfiggins was slowly recovering from his wound, and that no further fears were entertained for his safety. Not so however with poor Tweezle. His wound had proved exceedingly difficult of cure and at the end of a month he lay in a very precarious state. To add to this vexation, news also reached us that the heart of the interesting and romantic Miss Julietta Blossom had been touched by the dangers which the gallant Major had undergone for her sake. Rumor added—and rumor for once spoke the whole truth—that the gentle fair one, had after a short siege, yielded her heart and fixed a day when she would yield her hand to the captivating soldier. This news I thought would prove rather too much even for the comfortable philosophy of my friend, and I hesitated about communicating it to him. By some means, however, it came to his knowledge.

"What's your opinion of my wound, sir?" said he to me one day after I had returned from a solitary saunter through Boulogne.

"Bad enough,' said I, 'but you will recover in three or four months."

"I doubt it," replied Tweezle; "but still it might have been worse!"

"If he had killed you outright," said I, guessing his meaning.

"Precisely so," replied he, smiling, and looking quite happy to think he had escaped life, and had only received a wound which would confine him for six months to his bed.

"And what do you think of womankind in general,' said Tweezle again, 'and to Miss Julietta Blossom in particular?"

"They are false in general,' said I, 'and Julietta Blossom is false in particular."

"Ah!' said Tweezle, chuckling, 'I am a happy man!"

"I wish you a long continuance of your happiness," replied I.

Tweezle looked serious for a moment, and then heaved a deep sigh. 'I have lost her!" said he.

"Miss Blossom?" inquired I.

"Yes; and a sweet creature she was,—rich, beautiful, and well born! and I—I have lost her!" Tweezle made an effort to look sad. 'But it might have been worse!" he added, brightening up.

For my part I was glad to see him so cheerful; but I could not well see what reasons he had for being so, and I therefore asked him.

"I might have married her!" said Tweezle.

Happy, happy Peregrine!

"Divided Duty."

THE Sun under this head, tells a thrilling story, to show that the age of heroic deeds is not past—the hero in this case being a poor employee of a railroad company, and within a few miles of New York. We quote:

Albert G. Drecker is the bridge-tender at the Passaic river drawbridge, on the Newark and New York railroad. On Friday afternoon, just previous to the time for a passenger train to reach the bridge, the draw was open. Mr. Decker knew that the train was coming. He began to turn the bridge, so as to close the draw before its arrival.

At this moment he saw his little son, who was only ten years old, and who was not far from him, fall from the bridge into the river below. The agonized father looked down the track. He saw the train coming swiftly toward the bridge, and knew that to do his utmost there was barely time to close the draw. In the water below him his boy was struggling for life. A leap into the stream at this moment, and he could save his child. But the train came thundering down, and he knew that if he left his post for even a single instant a hundred lives might be sacrificed. He stayed. Slowly the bridge was swung into position, and the train passed safely over, and none of the passengers knew what their safety had cost the poor workman, who sprang into the river only to take thence the lifeless body of his boy.

Is there any story of heroism to surpass this? Think, if you can, of the terrible alternatives of duty which were presented to this man. There was no time to deliberate. His son was dying. He could easily rescue him by leaping into the river beneath. But that leap must have cost many other precious lives—perhaps hundreds—and had he a right to imperil these? The agony of a lifetime of suffering must have been compressed into that moment of doubt. With sublime and heroic fortitude, this noble father resolved to do his highest duty; and to that duty his son was sacrificed. How many of us would have done the same.

TOUCHING WAR INCIDENT.—Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, at his Friday evening prayermeeting, related the following:

"Not long since I found myself at Cincinnati, with a little spare time, and I thought I would improve it by visiting some of the southern battle-fields and burial places. I first proceeded to Nashville, On going out to the Soldiers' Cemetery, I observed a man planting a flower over a grave. I approached him and asked if his son was buried there? 'No,' was the response. 'A son-in-law?' 'No,' 'A relative?' 'No.' 'Whose memory, then, do you cherish?' I ventured to ask. After delaying a moment, and putting down a small board which he had in his hand: 'Well, I will tell you. When the war broke out I lived in Illinois. I wanted to enlist, but I was poor, and I had a large family of children depending on me for their daily bread. Finally, as the war continued, I was drafted. No draft money was given me; I was unable to procure a substitute, and I made up my mind to go. After I had got everything in readiness, and was just leaving to report to the conscript camp, a young man whom I had known came to me and said: 'You have a big family, whom your wife cannot support while you have gone to fight for your country; I will go for you.' In the battle of Chickamauga the poor fellow was dangerously wounded. Owing to Bragg's offensive demonstrations on Chattanooga, he along with others was taken to the hospital at Nashville. After a lingering illness he died, and was buried there. Ever since hearing of his death I have been desirous of coming to Nashville and seeing that his remains were properly buried. Having saved sufficient funds, I came here yesterday, and have to-day found the poor fellow's grave.' On completing the story the man took up the small board and inserted it at the foot of the grave. On going to look at it I found this simple inscription, and nothing more. 'He died for me.'"

BESIDES the fact that ice is lighter than water, there is another curious thing about it which most persons do not know, perhaps—namely, its purity. A lump of ice melted will become pure distilled water. When the early navigators of the Arctic seas got out of water they melted fragments of those vast mountains of ice called icebergs, and were astonished to find that they yielded only fresh water. They thought they were frozen sea water, not knowing that they were formed on the land and in some way launched into the sea. But if they had been right the result would have been all the same. The fact is, the water in freezing turns out of it all that is not water—salt, air, coloring matter and all impurities. Frozen sea water makes fresh water ice. If you freeze a basin of indigo water it will make ice as clear and as white as that made of pure rain water. When the cold is very sudden, these foreign matters have no time to escape, either by rising or sinking and are thus entangled with the ice, but do not make any part of it.

REMARKABLE BREACH OF PROMISE CASE.—In the Morris County, New Jersey, Circuit the case of Eliza Garthwait against Richard Powell was brought up. This action was brought for the recovery of $2,000 damages for breach of promise of marriage. The Plaintiff is a widow, and lives in New York City, and is, as she alleges, 57 years old. The Defendant lives at Flanders, Morris County, is a widower, and has arrived at the age of 77. The plaintiff alleges that defendant promised to marry her four years ago, and since that time he has broken his engagement and married another. The defendant denies there was any engagement on his part, and, if there was any engagement, he afterwards learned that she was a very passionate woman, and that she and her former husband lived very unhappily together, and thought the best thing for him to do under those circumstances was to retract his promise. The jury came into Court on Friday, rendering a verdict of $2,000 for plaintiff.

The Columbian
—AND—
Bloomsburg Democrat.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY MORNING OCT. 15, 1869.

☞ THE COLUMBIAN has the Largest Circulation of any paper published in Northern Pennsylvania, and is also a much larger sheet than any of its cotemporaries; and is therefore the best medium for advertising in this section of the State.

Important to Editors and Printers.

WE have on hand, and will sell at low rates three hand presses, which have accumulated by the purchase of a Power and Gordon press, and by the consolidation of the Democrat with the COLUMBIAN.

1. A Washington Hoe Press, new, platen 41x26 inches. It was in use only ten months, with a light edition.

2. A Washington Hoe Press, formerly in Democrat & Star office, platen 36x23 inches. It is complete and sound.

3. A Washington Hoe Press, new, foolscap size, platen 19¼x14¼ inches. It is almost indispensable in an office not having a Gordon.

In addition to this we have a large quantity of bourgeois, nonpareil, rules, chases, job type, etc., sufficient to start an office, which we will sell in lots or together, as purchasers may prefer.

The Senatorship.

MR. BUCKALEW is reported to have a majority of between three and four hundred in Northumberland County, and a majority of 352 in Sullivan. In this county his majority will probably reach 1750. We have no definite returns from Montour, but Whitmoyer's majority in that county cannot we think exceed eight hundred. The majority in the district for Mr. Buckalew will therefore be about 1600; a very handsome result considering the bolt in Montour and the vigorous assault made upon the other counties of the district.

We shall fully examine the subject of the Senatorial vote in our next number, with the official returns before us, and shall "point the moral" which this election presents. For we shall then have most instructive materials in authentic form from which instruction for the future can be derived, and the occasion must not be permitted to pass without due improvement.

Montour which should have contributed 500 majority to our party in the election of Senator, has been made to give a majority to the Republican candidate against the Democratic nominee. In that fact we have the condemnation of Chalfant and his advisers. They exerted themselves to the utmost to have our district misrepresented for three years. They played into the hands of the Radical party and made themselves the instruments of a corrupt and infamous "ring" outside the district. But they are beaten—badly beaten—and nothing remains but to sum up the result and review at leisure the leading features of the contest.

THE ELECTION.—We give reported returns of the election in the several districts of this county, so far as they have reached us at the time of going to press. Estimating the vote of the few Districts not heard from, we conclude that Packer's majority in the county will reach one thousand nine hundred and fifty. If the rain uppon election day had not occured it would have been (in our opinion,) three hundred more.

In the State the result is uncertain, or at all events is unknown. In the city of Philadelphia there is an unexpected majority against us, but in other parts of the State there are, generall. Packer gains. We must await further information before we can certainly announce the result.

We go to press in advance of the meeting of the Return Judges for our county. In our next we will give the official vote of the county as well as more complete returns for the State.

THE OHIO ELECTION.—COLUMBUS, Oct. 13.—Returns and opinions of both parties indicate the election of Hayes by about three thousand. The House is democratic and the Senate republican The Democrats claim that the election is so close that it will require the official vote to determine who is elected Governor.

Mr. Harrison, chairman of the republican State Central Committee, claims the election of Hayes by from five to eight thousand majority. The legislature is close. Fifty-six counties heard from show heavy republican losses.

CONSIDERING the "big talk" of Chalfant and McNinch about the great vote the former was to get in Columbia county, the election returns from several Districts possess peculiar interest. In this connection we refer "all sympathizing friends" of the late stump candidate, to the vote in Centralia, Hemlock and Franklin. The meager influence of that precious pair of scalawags—Mc Ninch and Sanders—is also shown by the returns from Catawissa and Berwick.

The Literary Institute and Pennsylvania State Normal School.

A few days since we paid the above institution a visit and propose to give our readers the benefit of that visit in as brief a manner as possible. These buildings are situated in Bloomsburg Pa., and command one of the most beautiful sites in the place, the grounds taking a gradual elevation from the upper end of the main street to the first building, where you ascend a pair of steps and there you are greeted with the perfume of a rare collection of flowers. From this point, the buildings are surrounded with good substantial plank walks which lead to every door and outbuilding. In front of the Institute is a beautiful portico. Here you enter the building, and upon one side of the main hall you find Prof. Ludwig busily engaged giving lessons and instructions in drawing and German. Upon the other side of the hall is the class-room of Miss Mary E. Beaman, whom we found giving instruction in geography.

From the main Hall you pass to a side Hall, and at the first door to the left you are greeted by Mr. J. C. Brown, who imparts to one and all Grammar with its dryness, but the most important and useful accomplishment in the English Language. The Preceptress, Miss S. A. Carver, is also here and takes under her supervision French, Botany, and the ornamental branches. Directly opposite her room you will find Prof. Best, imparting information in the ancient languages. In the centre room you meet J. W. Ferree, Principal of the mathematical course. At the further end of this Hall is the class room of Prof. W. A. Williams, whose branches of instruction are penmanship and book keeping. Unlike other institutions, they do not promise to take one into this department and in one course of instructions turn him out with a full and complete store of knowledge, and guarantee him a situation when done, but they do give, and each pupil must go through and learn, a systematic course. In the upper room is the chapel, which is capable of comfortably seating 1,500 persons. This is now used during the week as a place to give the scholars from the model school (of which we will speak hereafter) a thorough training in gymnastics. From this building you have, one might say, one of the finest views in this part of the State. Upon one side is the Susquehanna river, on the other the Iron mountains of Columbia county, and in front of it lies the town of Bloomsburg, with its regularly laid out streets, its many beautiful residences and fine buildings. From this building you go to the Boarding house, which contains the rooms of the Model School. This school is divided into two grades, under the charge of Prof. F. M. Bates and Miss Julia Guest. Here pupils of all ages from 5 to 20 years are instructed in the first rudiments of education. Music is not neglected. This department is under the charge of Miss Alice Carver, assisted by Miss Nellie Powell. Mrs. H. L. Best, who has the entire charge of vocal music, we are safe in saying has no superior as a teacher in this section of the State. They use pianos manufactured by Gale & Co., of Baltimore. The building is four stories in height, and in it there are four bath rooms for the use of the students. The third and fourth floors are occupied as bed rooms; the girls occupying one wing and the boys the other. Every room in the house is heated by steam pipes, and every part of the building is well supplied with water from a cistern which receives its supply from the water carried off the roof when it rains, by a pipe or conductor, to an elevation within two or three feet of its own level. System is manifested in every department. Upon the first floors of this building are the laundry, kitchen, and dining room, the latter in the shape of a letter L, so that the Professor, by taking the head of the table at the angle, can have a view of all the students while at their meals. We here sat down to one of the best dinners that it has ever been out lot to partake of at a boarding school. Some of our first-class hotels would do well to pattern after their bill of fare. The school already numbers two hundred and fifty students, and a more orderly, better regulated school we have never see. At the tap of the foot silence reigns and a pin could have been heard falling in any part of the dining room. At a motion the chairs were pulled back and all were seated. The kitchen is a model in itself, but it would take too much time and space to describe it as it deserves. Nothing has been left undone to make it perfect in every department The laundry has all the modern appliances that can be thought of to make washing comparatively easy. This whole institution has been planned and placed where it now is by Professor Henry Carver, and in a little less than four years. He has been assisted by citizens of Bloomsburg, whose names we might mention could we do so consistently in this article. All have done nobly and deserve great praise. In this school we have truly a model and it deserves well of every one. Children here receive all the advantages that can be given, and most especially is this school adapted for preparing persons to teach, and those who are about to take upon themselves that profession will do well to send for a catalogue. Everything that will conduce to the comfort of its students has been done. The ventilation is perfect, and one here finds all the comforts of home. The closing services in the evening are well conducted, and every scholar upon his honor gives a record of his conduct during the day. We have never spent a more pleasant time. To Mr and Miss Carver, Mr. and Mrs. Best, Mr. Williams, and Mr. Brown we desire to return our thanks for the many kindnesses shown us.—Scranton Republican.

AN INCIDENT.—At the funeral service of David James one of the Avondale victims, after the affecting prayer, and address of Rev. Mr. Walker, Rev. Thomas P. Hunt, Chaplain of Post 97, G. A. R., was requested to make an address. The old man, with his flowing white beard, arose and said, "Comrades, I reserve my words for the service at the grave. But I have a work to do—wait a minute." The comrades standing around the coffin of the dead, waited while the old Chaplain left the room and soon returned with an infant in his arms. "Comrades," said he, "do you know this babe? I introduce her to you as the babe of your Post—will you receive her as such?" With a burst of tears they exclaimed, "We will! she shall be ours." The child was turned towards the dead father and asked, "who is that?" In only the few words that she knew, she said, "Papa—kiss," and pressed her lips upon his. No heart could stand that scene without tears, and the Post will never forget nor abandon the orphan of their comrade.

—John Hancock's chair, or the chair that those old patriots sat on while they signed the Declaration of Independence, is now in the possession of the Middletown Bank. How it came into possession of that bank, we would like to know. The chair of itself has nothing to recommend it, in either ease or beauty; but as a relic of Revolutionary times it will some day be worth its weight in gold and the State of Pennsylvania never should allo it to pass out of her possession.

In planting, Mr. Beecher's great trouble is that when he puts in a field of melons they will come up punkins, whilst his sweet potato crop always turns out to be the "infernalest carrots."

DOTY'S WASHING-MACHINE,
LATELY MUCH IMPROVED—AND THE NEW UNIVERSAL CLOTHES WRINGER
Improved with Rowell's Patent Double Cog-Wheels, and the Patent Stop, are now unquestionably far superior to any apparatus for washing clothes ever invented, and will save their cost twice a year, by saving labor and clothes.
Those who have used them give testimony as follows:
"We like our machine much; could not be persuaded to do without it, and with the aid of Doty we feel that we are masters of the position."—Rev. L. Scott, Bishop M. E. Church.
"It is worth one dollar a week in any family." —N. Y. Tribune.
"In the laundry of my house there is a perpetual thanksgiving on Mondays for the invention." —Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler.
"Every week has given it a stronger hold upon the affections of the inmates of the laundry."—N. Y. Observer.
"I heartily commend it to economists of time, money, and contentment."—Rev. Dr. Bellows.
"Friend Doty—Your last improvement of your Washing Machine is a complete success. I assure you 'our Machine,' after a years' use, is thought more of to-day than ever, and would not be parted with under any circumstances."—Solon Robinson.
"Your Washing Machine has been in daily use in our laundry, and the housekeeper expresses herself as highly pleased with it. It certainly accomplishes a greater amount of work, with less labor, and does not wear the clothes near so much as the old fashioned wash-board. By using it, one laundress is dispensed with."—Wm. M. F. Round, Superintendent of Infant Department of St. Catharine's Nursery, N. Y. City.
"After a constant use of the Universal Clothes Wringer for more than four years in our family, I am authorized by the 'powers that be,' to give it the most unqualified praise, and to pronounce it an indispensable part of the machinery of housekeeping. The Columbian.

Bloomsburg, Pa., Friday Oct. 15, 1869.

BUCKALEW got 87 votes in Danville. Chalfant got 10 in Bloomsburg.

CHALFANT received eight votes in Sullivan county, and they were cast by Republicans.

THE election at this place passed off very quietly. Considering the heavy storm, a very good vote was polled.

Those having charge of the various "window books," are requested to forward them at once to this office.

THE vote for Chalfant in this county gives the measure of the influence of McNinch, Sanders & Co. Buckalew beat him two to one in Berwick, and five to one in Catawissa.

A STEADY rain set on Tuesday morning, and lasted all day. The effect of it was to keep at least 400 of our voters at home. Notwithstanding this our majority in the county will reach 1900.

The magnificent vote given to M. C. Woodward on Tuesday last for Constable is a strong testimonial of the confidence and respect of the community. We are rejoiced to see such strong support given to a faithful officer.

THE FAIR.—At the present time of writing, notwithstanding the disagreeable weather, there is every prospect of a successful fair. The attendance is large and the articles on exhibition unusually well selected.

FIGHT.—A savage fight took place on election day between two men named respectively King and Oberdorf in which the latter, we understand, was severely handled. No arrests were made.

THE stump candidate for Senator made a poor investment when he sent two men with money and "extras" to Sullivan county. He gets but eight votes in that county.

Packer's majority in Sullivan is 345; Mr. Buckalew's 352.

THE IOWA ELECTION.—CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—The returns from Iowa come in very slowly, but the State will probably give 25,000 republican majority. Monticello gives 250 republican majority—5 less than last year.

BLOOM TOWNSHIP.—Our vote in this district is a fine one, and we must congratulate our friends upon it. Packer has 18 majority (the best majority in recent years) while Mr. Buckalew has 58! For the latter many of the best men of the Republican party voted.

MR. BUCKALEW's majority of 1500 in this district over Whitmoyer is very much less than his majority would have been over Chalfant if there had been no Republican candidate. We have no doubt that in such case he would have beaten Chalfant more than 2,500.

THAT very capital family paper Hearth and Home has made a very important reduction in its rates; for five subscribers and over the price will be but $2.40 each, making it the cheapest family paper published. To all those who subscribe before the first of Jan. next the numbers to the end of this year will be sent free. Address Hearth and Home 37 Park Row, New York.

MUSICAL.—Among the attractions at ous County Fair this week, Mr. L. B. Powel.'s Musical Department is one of the most interesting. He is exhibiting samples of Chickering's Pianos, Mason & Hamlin's Organ and Treat, Linsley & Co's., Melodeons. Mr. Powell is wholesale agent for these popular instruments, and is doing a large and thriving business at Scranton, Pa. *

BLOOM TOWNSHIP.—We give below the vote of Bloom Township for the various offices in detail:

Governor, Packer 309, Geary 291; Judge of the Supreme Court, Pershing 310, Williams 294; State Senator, Buckalew 319, Whitmoyer 261 Chalfant 10; Prothonotary, Ent 300, Cool 288; Representative, Scott 304, Zeller 293; Register and Recorder, Jacoby 316, Barton 275; Treasurer, Lowenberg 312, Fowler 280; Commissioner, Robbins 298, Staley 295; Auditor, Campbell 301, Mallery 291; Associate Judge, Mann 301, Kester 293.

THE Mutual Building and Saving Fund Association of Bloomsburg has been organized by the election of the following Directors and Officers: J. A. Funston, W. B. Koons, E. Mendenhall, S. H. Miller, D. J. Waller, A. Witman, C. Robbins, C. I. Thomas, M. Wynkoop, B. F. Hartman, J. B. Robison and A. J. Evans.

President John Thomas; Vice President, E. Mendenhall; Treasurer, S. H. Miller; Secretary, J. B. Robison. The Association is similar to one that has been in operation in this place the last two years.

ALMOST AN ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday evening of last week, having some sickness in our family, we requested a couple of friends to take a stove, which was not in use, from this office, and put it up in one of the rooms of our house. After it had been put together and a fire started, it was discovered that the drawer had been left, and Mr. H. G. Phillips went back to the office after it. On his return, it was found that the drawer would not go in. On stooping down to ascertain the cause, we saw by the burning coals which were dropping through the grate freely, a powder flask, which on examination we found to contain a pound of rifle powder. It was very hot when we took it out. At the time there were several persons standing around the stove, and at least a dozen persons in an adjoining room. The escape from explosion was providential. How the flask got in the stove we have not ascertained.

READ YOUR OWN PAPER.—We should just as soon think of making a practice of borrowing a man's tooth-brush as borrowing his paper. Every man ought to have a newspaper of his own if he would be considered "a man among men." The too prevalent practice of borrowing newspapers has become a proper subject for condemnation. A single copy is often made to do duty in half a dozen families, and that, too, from one year's end to another. This is all wrong. There are many people in the world who make a business to get the reading of their country paper without any expense to themselves. We know it is hard for a person to refuse a neighbor or an acquaintance the privilege of reading his newspaper, but some borrowers have little delicacy and sensitiveness, and a prompt, flat refusal to encourage them in sponging on others for news and interesting reading would not hurt them much, and might induce them to take and pay for a good paper. It is unjust to the subscriber and deprives the publisher of the reward he is entitled to from all who derive pleasure and instruction from the paper it has cost him so much money to issue.

SHOE TIPS.—The American Shoe Tip Company have introduced, this season, a new white metal tip, which by wear has the appearance of silver, and is decidedly ornamental. A metal tip adapted to first-class shoes has long been needed. This new tip meets this demand, and must come into its general use on the finer grades of children's shoes as the copper tips have on the common grades.—Boston Journal. *

FORTY THOUSAND CASES OF

goods were shipped from our house in One Year, to families, clubs, and merchants, in every part of the country, from Maine to California, amounting in value to over

ONE MILLION DOLLARS.

Our facilities for transacting this immense business are better than ever before. We have agents in all the principal cities to purchase goods from the Manufacturers, Importers, and others for CASH, and often at an immense sacrifice from the original cost of production.

Our stock consists, in part, of the following goods:—

Shawls, Blankets, Quilts, Cottons, Ginghams, Dress Goods, Table Linen, Towels, Hosiery, Gloves Skirts, Corsets, &c., &c.

Silver-Plated ware, Spoons plated on Nickel Silver, Dessert Forks, five-bottle plated Castors, Britannia Ware, Glass Ware, Table and Pocket Cutlery, in great variety.

Elegant French and German Fancy Goods, Beautiful Photograph Albums, the newest and choicest styles in Morocco and Velvet Bindings. Morocco Travelling Bags, Handkerchief and Glove Boxes, &c.

Gold and Plated Jewelry, of the newest styles.

We have also made arrangements with some of the leading Publishing Houses, that will enable us to sell the standard and latest works of popular authors at about one-half the regular price:—such as BYRON, MOORE, BURNS, MILTON, and TENNYSON'S WORKS, in full Gilt and Cloth Bindings,—and hundreds of others. These and everything else for

ONE DOLLAR FOR EACH ARTICLE.

We do not offer a single article of merchandise that can be sold by regular dealers at our price. We do not ask you to buy goods from us unless we can sell them cheaper than you can obtain them in any other way,—while the greater part of our goods are sold at about

ONE-HALF THE REGULAR RATES.

We want good reliable agents in every part of the Country. By employing your spare time to form clubs and sending us orders, you can obtain the most liberal commissions, either in CASH or MERCHANDISE, and all goods sent by us will be as represented, and we guarantee satisfaction to every one dealing with our house.

Agents should collect ten cents from each customer and forward to us in advance, for Descriptive Checks of the good we sell.

The holders of the Checks have the privilege of either purchasing the article there on described, or of exchanging for any article mentioned on our Catalogue, numbering over 350 different articles,—not one of which can be purchased in the usual way for the same money.

The advantages of first sending for Checks are these: We are constantly buying small lots of very valuable goods, which are not on our catalogues, and for which we issue checks till all are sold; besides, in every large club we will put checks for Watches, Quilts, Blankets, Dress Patterns, or some other articles of value, giving some members of the club an opportunity of purchasing an article for about one quarter of its value.

"In every order amounting to over $50, accompanied by the cash, the Agent may retain $2.00, and in every order of over $100, $3.00 may be retained to

PAY THE EXPRESS CHARGES.

This offer is more especially to assist Agents in the Western and Southern States, but is open to all customers.

COMMISSIONS:

Agents will be paid ten per cent, in Cash or Merchandise, when they FILL UP THEIR ENTIRE CLUB, for which below we give a partial List of Commissions:

For an order of $30, from a club of Thirty, we will pay the Agent, as commission, 28 yds. Brown or Bleached Sheeting, Good Dress Pattern, Wool Square Shawl, French Cassimere Pants and Vest Pattern, Fine Large White Counterpane, etc., etc., or $3.00 in cash.

LET US PROTECT OURSELVES.—The physical structure of the strongest human being is vulnerable everywhere. Our bodies are endowed by nature with a certain negative power, which protects them, to some extent, from unwholesome influences; but this protection is imperfect and cannot be safely relied on in unhealthy regions, or under circumstances of more than ordinary danger. Therefore, it is wisdom; it is prudence; it is common sense to provide against such contingencies, by taking an antidote in advance; in other words, by fortifying the system with HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS—the most complete protective against all the epidemic and endemic maladies that has ever been administered in any country. As a remedy for Dyspepsia, there is no medicine that will compare with it. Whoever suffers the pangs of indigestion, anywhere on the face of the earth where HOSTETTER's STOMACH BITTERS can be procured, does so voluntarily; for, as surely as truth exists, this invaluable tonic and alterative would restore his disordered stomach to a healthy condition. To the nervous it is also especially recommended, and in cases of confirmed constipation it also affords speedy and permanent relief.

In all cases of fever and ague the BITTERS is more potent than any amount of quinine, while the most dangerous cases of bilious fever yield to its wonderful properties. Those who have tried the medicine will never use another, for any of the ailments which the HOSTETTER BITTERS professes to subdue. To those who have not made the experiment we cordially recommend an early application to the BITTERS whenever they are stricken by disease of the digestive organs.

CATARRH REMEDY.

We do not wish to inform you, reader, that Dr. Wonderful, or any other man, has discovered a remedy that cures Consumption, when the lungs are half consumed, in short, will cure all diseases whether of mind, body or estate, make men live forever, and leave death to play for want of work, and is designed to make our sublunary sphere a blissful paradise, to which Heaven itself shall be but a side show. You have heard enough of that kind of humbuggery, and we do not wonder that you have by this time become disgusted with it. But when I tell you that Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will positively cure the worst cases of Catarrh, I only assert that which thousands can testify to. Try it and you will be convinced. I will pay $500 Reward for a case of Catarrh that I cannot cure.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY!

CAMPTILICON CARPET!

A new, cheap durable, healthy, and B

FLOOR COVERING!

A substitute for oil-cloth at one-third the cost.

This carpet is produced by a peculiar combination of strong, heavy paper, printed in ornamental colors, and coated with a tough, elastic, water proof enamel which receives the water, protects the colors and paper endures washing, and renders the carpet bright and beautiful in the extreme. Its advantages are as follows:—

Its cost renders it available to all classes; It is exceedingly smooth and glossy, and it accumulates next to no dust; It does not require to be taken up and cleaned like other carpet, and thus saves much labor and trouble; By re-coating with the Camptilicon Enamel occasionally as the case may require, (which costs but a trifle,) it will last indefinitely, ever an age, and always appear new and bright; in its use no reliance whatever is placed upon the paper for wear, but exclusively upon the water-proof coating, the figured paper being used only to secure the colors. Paper has recently been used for a variety of purposes, even for trunks, roofs, flour bags and wearing apparel, but the first attempt, either in Europe or America, to convert it into carpet or floor covering, all concede it to be an entire success!

We have purchased the right for Columbia county and can furnish the carpet to merchants at manufacturers prices.

Farmers, Lumbermen, coal operators, speculators and others will please to remember the day of sale.

An examination of said property will be the best recommendation of it. Therefore the undersigned administrator will be at the house of Lewis Lee on the adjoining premises, on Saturday previous to the day of sale with a view and desire of showing said timber and lands to all and every person having a desire to see the same before the sale, also one other lot in same township (near Slabtown) adjoining lands of widow Troxel, Joseph Gail and others, containing 8 acres more or less improved land to be sold as the property of said deceased.

FARMER'S COLUMN.

MANAGEMENT OF YOUNG STOCK.—As this is the season of the year when the worst kind of management commences, it may be the means of saving much loss in growth, and, perhaps, in some instances, loss of life, to allude to the great evil of allowing calves, lambs or colt to sink in condition against winter. October nights become very cool, and, as the grass is not sufficient for any young animals, they should be separated from all older stock, and put in and fed night and morning, remaining in shelter all night; or, if there were small enclosures, with comfortable hovels in them, they would do best up till Christmas to be fed in them and have liberty to go in and out at pleasure. If these places could be built on the side of a hill or at the foot of it, facing the south, so that the shelter for the calves would be cut into the bank, and their barn for their hay be above, they would do well; and, with a cellar for roots, they could not be better situated, providing more roots from heaps well secured in the fields are fetched into the cellar as fast as the calves eat them. Colts would thrive better similarly treated, by having carrots in their cellar, for, though swedes are decidedly the best roots for calves, carrots are the right sort for colts. Where no roots are grown, pumpkins for the calves, and bran, mixed with oats, for colts, will be the food to give, in addition to good sweet hay.

Whoever raises stock, ought to have conveniences for it, and should understand the importance of giving them suitable food at every time when it will conduce to their prosperity; no check to one continued thrift should be permitted, and if every animal on a farm, excepting breeding females, could be kept fat from its infancy, it would double the profit. When any poor little creature stands about with its back rounded, looking an object of pity, it cannot be growing or paying for the miserable attention it receives; but when it is known that the young stock on a farm is not brought into any sheltered quarters or has not any comfortable shed to go to till it has begun to lose flesh, and the owner is afraid he will lose a part of the animals if not fed and housed, then such a man ought to be deprived of the power to do such evil, for this is the worst kind of cruelty, ten times more barbarous than the cases usually prosecuted by the society in New York.

Colts are managed in the most senseless way, and brought out in spring in a wretched plight. I saw some colts at a gentleman's place near New London, Conn., in the spring of 1867, which had been treated in such a way that they could barely walk—moving faster was out of the question. Colts, if properly attended to, will gambol and race around at every slight excitement; but they are frequently ruined by unnatural confinement and food which it is contrary to nature for them to have. Let them have the range of a good field every day the sun shines. It is all bosh about confining them in buildings all the time; the grass they will pick, by scraping the snow away by pawing, will do them more good than any coddling, and they will come into their shelter and eat double the oats, bran and hay that they would without the sun and fresh air; and should they get enough grass to take them off their hay somewhat, they will be none the worse if they get plenty of the best grain. If there is no chance of giving colts the benefit of a run on pasture, carrots will be a substitute for the grass, and they must have air and sunshine; the last mentioned is really of the most essential importance.

Lambs will be quite as heavy at one year old, with as many turnips as they can eat from the 1st of September till New-Year day, and a full supply of swedes the first three months of the new year, as they would be under the very best common attention, without roots, on the 1st of April twelve months after, viz: when they were two years old; and at one year old, after the seven months living on roots, with hay, &c., they would cut a fleece heavier than the two clips of wool without roots.

There is the same gain in other stock as there is in lambs, by giving them such kind of succulent food as will force them along, but in valuable breeds of any kind the advantage does not rest at the saving of a year's feeding; for the frame being all the while made up with firm flesh, which always accumulates on the best points, the animals grow into very much handsomer shaped specimens, and become splendid when matured.—Country Gentleman.

A FISHY STORY.—Several gentlemen of this city, tired of office business, went fishing for chubs last week. They caught a number but brought none home for the reason that their experience was that described by Genio Scott's Angling. He says: "Being prepared to fish, the bullheads put in an appearance immediately, so that within half an hour, they had taken some two dozen fish, and as fast as they took them they cast them on the grassy bank of the shore. Having a pretty good mess they cut a switch and went to string them, when not one was to be found. Surprised at this, they concluded to solve the mystery, and so commenced fishing again, and throwing the fish on the shore as before, but keeping a sly watch on them. After they cast the fourth one a large bullfrog leaped from the water, took hold of a bullhead, and rolled into the water with it; leaping out immediately, and taking another fish, he rolled on as before, and so continued until he had returned the four to the water; and always as fast as they had taken three or four, the frog returned and helped them back into the river."

MINCED EGGS.—Take four or five hard-boiled eggs; shell them and mince them, but not too small. Thicken a breakfast-cupful of gravy or milk, with sufficient flour rolled in butter; add some savory herbs, chopped small; season with Cayenne or white pepper, a little nutmeg and salt; simmer it for ten minutes, put in the eggs, shake it gently round and round over the fire for a few moments, and serve garnished with sippets of toast and small pieces of sliced lemon. Any particular flavor may be given to this dish, to suit the taste.

—In Pilesgrove, Salem county, there is a farm of 200 acres which in one year yielded $6,600 to the owner and a like sum to the tenant.

THE YOUNG FOLKS.

Jorinda and Jorindel.

There was once an old castle, that stood in the middle of a deep gloomy wood, and in the castle lived an old fairy. Now this fairy could take any shape she pleased. All the day long she flew about in the form of an owl, or crept about the country like a cat; but at night she always became an old woman again. When any young man came within a hundred paces of her castle, he became quite fixed, and could not move a step till she came and set him free; which she would not do till he had given her his word never to come there again; but when any pretty maiden came within that space she was changed into a bird, and the fairy put her into a cage, and hung her up in a chamber in the castle. There were seven hundred of these cages hanging in the castle and all with beautiful birds in them.

Now there was once a maiden whose name was Jorinda. She was prettier than all the pretty girls that ever were seen before, and a shepherd lad, whose name was Jorindel, was very fond of her and they were soon to be married. One day they went to walk in the wood, that they might be alone; and Jorindel said, "We must take care that we don't go too near to the fairy's castle." It was a beautiful evening; the last rays of the setting sun shone bright through the long stems of the trees upon the green underwood beneath, and the turtledoves sang from the tall birches.

Jorinda sat down to gaze upon the sun; Jorindel sat by her side; and both felt sad, they knew not why; but it seemed as if they were to be parted from one another for ever. They had wandered a long way; and when they looked to see which way they should go home, they found themselves at a loss to know what path to take.

The sun was setting fast, and already half of its circle had sunk behind the hill; Jorindel on a sudden looked behind him, and saw through the bushes that they had, without knowing it, sat down close under the old walls of the castle. Then he shrank for fear, turned pale, and trembled. Jorinda was just singing,

"The ring-dove sang from the willow spray,
Well-a-day! well a-day!
He mourn'd for the fat of his darling mate,
Well-a-day!"

when her song stopped suddenly. Jorindel turned to see the reason, and beheld his Jorinda changed into a nightingale; so that her song ended with a mournful jug, jug. An owl with fiery eyes flew three times round them, and three times screamed,

"Tu whu! Tu whu! Tu whu!"

Jorindel could not move; he stood fixed as a stone, and could neither weep, nor speak, nor stir hand or foot. And now the sun went quite down; the gloomy night came; the owl flew into a bush; and a moment after the old fairy came forth pale and meagre, with staring eyes and a nose and chin that almost met one another.

She mumbled something to herself, seized the nightingale, and went away with it in her hand. Poor Jorindel saw the nightingale was gone,—but what could he do? he could not speak, he could not move from the spot where he stood. At last the fairy came back and sang with a hoarse voice,—

"Till the prisoner is fast,
And her doom is cast,
There stay! Oh, stay!
When the charm is around her,
And the spell has bound her,
Hie away! away!"

On a sudden Jorindel found himself free. Then he fell on his knees before the fairy, and prayed her to give him back his dear Jorinda: but she laughed at him, and said he should never see her again; then she went her way.

He prayed, he wept, he sorrowed, but all in vain. "Alas!" he said, "what will become of me?" He could not go back to his own home, so he went to a strange village, and employed himself in keeping sheep. Many a time did he walk round as near to the hated castle as he dared go, but all in vain; he heard or saw nothing of Jorinda.

At last he dreamt one night that he found a beautiful purple flower, and that in the middle of it lay a costly pearl; and he dreamt that he plucked the flower, and went with it in his hand into the castle, and that every thing he touched with it was disenchanted, and that there he found his Jorinda again.

In the morning when he awoke, he began to search over hill and dale for this pretty flower; and eight long days he sought for it in vain: but on the ninth day, early in the morning, he found the beautiful purple flower; and in the middle of it was a large dew-drop, as big as a costly pearl. Then he plucked the flower, and set out and travelled day and night, till he came again to the castle.

He walked nearer than a hundred paces to it, and yet he did not become fixed as before, but found that he could go quite close up to the door. Jorindel was very glad indeed to see this. Then he touched the door with the flower, and it sprang open; so that he went in through the court, and listened when he heard so many birds singing. At last he came to the chamber where the fairy sat, with the seven hundred birds singing in the seven hundred cages. When she saw Jorindel she was very angry, and screamed with rage; but she could not come within two yards of him, for the flower he held in his hand was his safeguard. He looked around at the birds, but alas! there were many, many nightingales, and how then should he find out which was his Jorinda? While he was thinking what to do, he saw the fairy had taken down one of the cages, and was making the best of her way off through the door. He ran or flew after her, touched the cage with the flower, and his Jorinda stood before him, and threw her arms round his neck; looking as beautiful as ever, as beautiful as when they walked together in the wood.

Then he touched all the other birds with the flower, so that they all took their old forms again; and he took Jorinda home where they were married, and lived happily together many years: and so did a good many other lads, whose maidens had been forced to sing in the old fairy's cages by themselves, much longer than they liked.

AT THE late term of our court of Common Pleas, in the case of Miss—— vs ——, an impeaching witness, was called and asked the usual question:

Do you know the reputation of Mr.—— for truth and veracity in the neighborhood where he resides?"

"Well" said the witness, "his reputation for veracity is considerably talked about?"

"What do you mean by veracity?" said the cross examining attorney.

"Why, I mean he's bad after the wimmin!"

DON'T INTEND ASTONISHING
THE WORLD PUMPING OIL, BUT WATER.
KAY'S PUMPS,
USED AND ADMIRED BY EVERY ONE.

Especially the ladies, being truly the ladies' friend, working much lighter and easier than the old tree pump. They don't make such a slop and don't collect so much ice around the floor in the winter, the water not running so long after pumping. Having taken the first premium at every fair they have been exhibited; also recommended by all Insurance Companies, on account of getting out more water in less time and with less labor, they throwing a barrel of water a minute. All we ask is a trial, and we are confident we can please you.

Again: It is more simple, it having no lower box packed with tow and tallow, which is the greatest trouble in the tree pump. Another great advantage is, that when you get a new pump you are not compelled to drink for a whole year

PITCH PINE OR BLACK OAK WATER.

Our pump being made of wild cucumber wood, which is free from taste, also lasts longer in water. It has also many other advantages, which can only be found out by using them. They have been in use in the northern part of the State for twenty years; selling rapidly everywhere.

All orders through the post office or left at his residence Hepburn street south side of the Basin, will be promptly attended to, by

WILLIAMSPORT, PA. ALLEN KAY, Manufacturer.
CATAWISSA, PA. A. J. PRESCOTT, Agent.

No orders will be received unless addressed to Mr. Kay or to Mr. Prescott his agent.

DRUGS & MEDICINES.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

HAIR DRESSING,

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
PRACTICAL AND ANALYTICAL CHEMISTS,
LOWELL, MASS.
PRICE $1.00.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

DR. YOUNG & BRO.—I find my sales of your valuable Remedies greatly increasing.
